2. In a letter dated 22 April 2008 to the Permanent Representative of Israel to the United Nations Office at Geneva, the Special Committee requested full access to the occupied territories in order to fulfil the responsibilities entrusted to it by the General Assembly in resolution 62/106. The Special Committee received no response from the Israeli authorities.

3. The Special Committee was supported by various United Nations agencies during the implementation of its mandate, specifically the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the offices of the United Nations Resident Coordinators in Egypt, Jordan and the Syrian Arab Republic in the organization of a mission and by offering in situ support.

4. The Special Committee carried out its mission from 23 June to 5 July 2008. It visited Egypt, Jordan and the Syrian Arab Republic. In the three countries, the Special Committee met with 33 witnesses representing Palestinian non-governmental organizations from the occupied territories and Israeli non-governmental organizations, as well as individuals from the Syrian Arab Republic.

5. Pursuant to paragraph 8 (d) of resolution 62/106, the activities below were undertaken.

Department of Public Information

6. The Department of Public Information disseminated information on the work of the Special Committee during the period from August 2007 to July 2008, using various means at its disposal.

7. Through its range of news and media products, the Department ensured that information on the Special Committee's work and findings was made available, in the six official languages of the Organization, to global audiences either through direct distribution or via broadcast partners.

8. The Special Committee's work was highlighted through the Department's UN News Centre, one of the most heavily visited portals of the United Nations website. Helping to add visibility to the Special Committee's activities, the news stories published on the portal were picked up by a range of United Nations and external websites, including news aggregators, online outlets of educational institutions, special interest groups and blogs. Through the associated e-mail news alerts service (in English and French), the stories were also distributed to over 54,000 subscribers, among them media professionals, government officials and representatives of non-governmental organizations.

9. The Meetings Coverage Section of the Department issued 12 press releases (6 each in English and French) on the Special Committee during the reporting period, including the Special Political and Decolonization (Fourth) Committee's consideration of the agenda item during the sixty-second session of the General Assembly.

10. United Nations Television provided coverage of press conferences, media encounters and formal intergovernmental deliberations where the question of Palestine was addressed, including in the General Assembly and the Security Council. The footage provided by United Nations Television to broadcasters in live feeds and daily highlights packages was used in stories produced and packaged through its UNifeed operation, which distributes its material to broadcasters around the world via satellite and the Internet. United Nations Radio newscasts and current affairs magazines covered the work of the Special Committee and related issues in the six official languages, as well as Portuguese and Kiswahili.

11. The Department also ensured that web pages on the question of Palestine were updated and maintained in the six official languages on the Organization's website (www.un.org) under its Global Issues page, with links to other related pages, including the database of the United Nations Information System on the Question of Palestine (UNISPAL).

12. The UN Chronicle magazine featured full coverage of the reports of the Special Committee and UN Today included a thorough review of the status of human rights of the Palestinian people.

13. The Dag Hammarskjöld Library continued its cooperation with the Division for Palestinian Rights to digitize older United Nations documents for posting on the Official Document System and on UNISPAL.

14. The report of the Special Committee was distributed to the media, non-governmental organizations, and educational institutions by United Nations information centres, United Nations information services and United Nations offices. The United Nations Information Centre at Cairo arranged for a press conference as well as television interviews for the Committee's members. A number of centres placed opinion pieces by the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East and the Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator in newspapers.

15. As requested by the General Assembly in its resolution 62/82, the Department held an annual training programme for five young Palestinian journalists at United Nations Headquarters, in Washington, D.C., and in Geneva (from 5 November to 14 December 2007), which included briefings on human rights by officials of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and coverage of the work of the General Assembly and the Human Rights Council relating to the question of Palestine.

16. The Department also published a new version of the booklet The United Nations and the Question of Palestine and displayed a new exhibit on Palestine at Headquarters. Both tackle the issue of human rights in the Occupied Palestinian Territory.
